REPORTS OF THE COMMITTEES.

A Petition from a Number of Presbyteries Asking That Revision Be Made in the Articles of Confession of Faith—Proceedings of the Meeting at Chattanooga.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The order of the day at the session of the general assembly yesterday was the report of the committee on fraternal co-operation in Christian work, between the northern and southern churches. Judge S. M. Breckenridge, who was to present the minority report, was not present and the consideration of the report was postponed until Thursday at 2:30 p. m.

THE ASSEMBLY IN SESSION.

Dr. D. Thompson, chairman of the committee on bills and overtures, reported that the committee had received overtures from fifteen presbyteries, asking that revisions be made in the articles of confession of faith. The committee thought that action on the matter should not be taken at present, and suggested that a communication be addressed to each one of the presbyteries under the control of the general assembly, asking them if they desired a revision of the confession and if so to what extent.

The time having arrived for the report of foreign mission the matter was made a special order for Friday afternoon. Dr. Striker then presented the report of the board of foreign mission. The report shows that the total number of missionaries, male and female, was 502. The deaths during the year from this number were 7. The total receipts amounted to $815,192, a decrease as compared with the previous year of $53,687. The women's board have contributed $278,904. The work of the board on the whole has been prosperous. This year the estimate for the field are $1,018,000. This amount has, however, been cut down to $850,000. The report of the committee was adopted.

A hot debate again occurred over the fourth resolution of the report of the board of missions for freedmen, charges of political maneuvers, bushwhackery, mismanagement, etc., were freely bandied. Finally, after a spirited defense of the board by Dr. Dickey, the resolution and the whole report were adopted.

The report of the board of publication and Sabbath schools was presented by Chairman Laidlaw, of Cincinnati. It showed a gratifying increase of results, and was unanimously adopted.

Presbyterians South.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 23.—In the meeting of southern general assembly of the Presbyterian church yesterday, reports were submitted favoring the removal of the office of the executive committee on foreign missions, from Baltimore to Nashville.

Dr. Houston, "secretary," tendered his resignation, which was referred to the committee on foreign missions.

The report of the committee on overture from the United States army, that the Presbyterian church furnished a more effective service to the army, was read. Dr. Woodrow said "that the time was once when we in the south would have felt a delicacy in dictating to the United States, and I fear that this is a step in that direction." By request of the committee the matter was submitted to them for further consideration.

The Woodrow case was then called and hotly discussed until the time to take up the regular order of business.

Dr. Edward Lane, delegate from the synod of Brazil, was introduced and spoke in behalf of the missionary work done in his country, and in behalf of the synod he invoked the prayers of the assembly. He was welcomed by the moderator.

In the afternoon session the recommendation of the committee to the complaint of the Charleston presbytery was decided by a vote of the assembly. The vote standing 131 to 36, with six not voting. That the presbytery did not intend to prohibit proper discussion.

On the proposition to remove the foreign missionary headquarters from Baltimore to Nashville received seventy-nine votes and Chattanooga forty-two.

The night session was devoted to a popular missionary meeting.

CABINET TROUBLES.

A Sensational Story, But a Denial from Headquarters.

NEW YORK, May 23.—A special to The Brooklyn Eagle from Washington, says: "It is learned from undeniable authority that there was a grand row in Tuesday's cabinet meeting, and that three of the cabinet officers tendered to the president their respective resignations, to take effect at once, if certain changes were not made. Secretary Blaine started the fight by delivering point blank at the president an ultimatum to the effect that if he could not be permitted to have some latitude in the conduct of the state department he must positively decline to remain in his present equivocal position any longer. Secretary Proctor immediately indorsed all Mr. Blaine had said, and declared that his resignation would follow Mr. Blaine's. Secretary Windom did not go quite so far, but assisted the other members in their efforts to convince the president that cabinet officers must be heads of their departments in deed, as well as in name. He said he could not afford to remain in a mere clerical position.

"The cause of the outbreak was the indisposition of the president to make certain appointments desired by Secretaries Blaine, Windom and Proctor. They spent much time trying to have several recommendations approved. Tuesday the president went so far as to completely turn down several of the proposals, and announced that he was going to do the exact opposite. Not the least doubt has existed here for several days that Blaine's days in the cabinet were numbered, and it is now certain that the figure is small."

No Truth in the Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—When Private Secretary Halford was shown the story alleging that there was trouble in the cabinet he laughed very heartily and remarked: "The president has always taken the ground that he cannot undertake to deny newspaper publication, and I am quite sure that he will not deviate from that rule."

During the course of further conversation Mr. Halford made statements which left the reported trouble without the slightest foundation, and finally pronounced it an "unmitigated falsehood" from beginning to end.

While Mr. Halford was being interviewed, efforts were being made to obtain statements from the secretaries mentioned in the article, namely: Messrs. Proctor, Blaine and Windom.

At the Arlington hotel it was learned that Secretary Proctor left here on Saturday last to go to his home in Vermont. He has not been in the city since that day and was not at the cabinet meeting Tuesday. Secretary Blaine was not at home when a representative of the United Press called to see him. Walker Blaine gave a very short answer to a query concerning the rumored resignation of the secretary. The question was sent in to him on a card, and he returned the card with the word "Nonsense" printed across its face in bold black letters.

Secretary Windom was seen at his home on Connecticut avenue. He pronounced the story ridiculous. "There is not a bit of truth in it," he said.

"Has there been any difference of opinion between you and the president in relation to appointments, or any complaint of delays in filling places in your department?"

"Not in the slightest," said the secretary. "There has been most perfect harmony in the cabinet. There is no truth in this story. I don't know how to make my denial of it strong enough. There is not even enough foundation for the imagination of a liar to build upon."

THE SIOUX'S DEMANDS.

They Hold a Council and Refuse to Sign the Treaty Unless Paid $11,000,000.

CHICAGO, May 22.—A Herald special from Standing Rock agency via Bismarck, Dak., says: The Indians here held a big council Sunday, and all agreed not to sign the treaty unless paid $11,000,000 for their land. They feel hurt at the way the government is treating them in regard to the treaties of 1867 and 1876, and they are really getting no more now than those treaties called for. The bill gives Red Cloud $28,000 for horses taken from him by the government in 1876, and as the Standing Rock Indians lost three horses to their one and could get nothing for them they are greatly incensed.

The commission will go to the Red Cloud and Spotted Tail agencies first, while the Indians are in a good humor over Red Red Cloud obtaining the large sums of money, and it is probable that over three-fourths of the males there will sign.

A Conflicting Report.

PIERRE, Dak., May 22.—A gentleman, well known in territorial politics, has just returned from Bismarck, where he had an interview with the post trader and agent, McLaughlin, of Standing Rock, in which he stated that no opposition whatever had developed among the Indians around the agency to the present Sioux bill, and that it would easily be ratified upon the coming of the commission.

Trouble With England

On the Alaskan Waters in the Near Future.

OVER THE ILLICIT SEAL FISHING.

A Story That England Has Determined to Send a Man-of-War There and That Three of Our Own Vessels Have Already Been Ordered to Head Off the Intruder. Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The story is afloat that England has determined to send a man-of-war to Alaska to protect the illicit sealing vessels flying the British flag from seizure and condemnation by the United States, under the provisions of the recent proclamation issued by President Harrison, and that there is great excitement in consequence. The report goes that the Thetis, of the navy, and the Bear and the Rush, of the revenue marine, have been ordered to proceed at once to Alaskan waters to head off the intruder, and to keep peace or preserve the proclamation at all hazards.

This story is discredited at the treasury department, and Capt. Bonnet, chief of the revenue marine bureau, states that he has no official knowledge of any effort on the part of England to circumvent the strict carrying out of the proclamation. The Thetis has been ordered to cruise around Point Barrow to give all possible aid in the establishment of the refuge station there, and the Bear and the Rush will start on their regular cruises as soon as they are in condition.

The Silent Make Themselves Heard.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—J. F. J. Tresch, the president of the National Republican league of deaf mutes, with headquarters in New York city, arrived in Washington yesterday with a message for President Harrison, from the executive committee of the league. The message contains arguments in favor of Hon. Austin E. Ford for the United States surveyorship of the port of New York; also for the appointment of deaf mutes in governmental offices. Mr. Tresch was met by Austin E. Ford, Patrick Ford and Patrick Egan, the United States minister to China, at the department of state in the afternoon.

In Honor of Pauncefote.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Secretary Blaine's excursion to the diplomatic corps in honor of Sir Julian Pauncefote, the new British minister, which was postponed on account of Minister Rice's death, will probably take place on Monday. The party will go down the Potomac on the United States Dispatch.

ENDED AT LAST.

The Noted Carter Divorce Suit Decided in the Husband's Favor.

CHICAGO, May 23.—The notable divorce case of Carter vs. Carter, which has been on trial for several weeks in the circuit court before Judge Jamieson, was finished yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock, when the jury came in with its verdict. The suit was brought by Mrs. Leslie Carter, who charged her husband with unnamable offenses. Mr. Carter filed a cross bill charging his wife with adultery. The prominence of the parties, the unusual beauty of Mrs. Carter and other matters unusual in such hearing made it a celebrated case, and the court room has been crowded since the trial began.

LESLIE CARTER.

During its progress the testimony took the listeners in imagination over a good part of Europe; gave them glimpses of the royal prodigality with which Mrs. Carter lavished money on personal adornments and equipages, though her husband was by no means a rich man; traced the payment to her of several large checks drawn by a prominent merchant of New York; made evident her friendship for handsome Kyrle Bellow, the actor; touched upon her relations with her physicians, and, in short, developed a series of sensations to satisfy the expectations of the most pruriently inclined.

MRS. CARTER.

The arguments were completed Tuesday afternoon and the case was given to the jury.

At the opening of the court yesterday morning it was announced that an agreement had been reached. The verdict when announced was to the effect that Mrs. Carter was guilty of adultery, as charged in the cross bill, and that Mr. Carter was not guilty of the charges preferred against him in his wife's bill. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Carter was present when the verdict was announced.

It is not thought likely that the verdict of the jury will end the matter. Mr. Hynes at once made a motion for a new trial, which, in the near future will be argued. If the motion is overruled, as it likely will be, Judge Jamieson will enter a decree giving Mr. Carter a divorce and the custody of the boy. Then Mrs. Carter will appeal to the appellate court and probably to the supreme court, and the case may drag along for years.

PRIZE FIGHT.

Joe McAuliffe Knocks Out Tom Lees at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—The fight between Joe McAuliffe and Tom Lees under the auspices of the Golden Gate Athletic club, took place last night. McAuliffe weighed about 200 pounds or less and Lees 170.

The fight began at 9:50. McAuliffe rushed at Lees and drew [illegible] blood. Lees dropped to avoid punishment and got in but few blows during the round.

Second round—Lees raised with his left and then covered his face with his arms. McAuliffe tried for his wind. It was plain that Lees meant to act on the defense and tire McAuliffe out.

Third round—Lees struck a few blows, but did no damage. Exchanges about even.

Fourth round—Lees dodged blows and sparred cleverly. McAuliffe's reach was longer, and he got in some good ones.

Fifth round—Lees dodged around the ring, McAuliffe following, getting in a few blows.

Sixth round—Lees clinched whenever possible to avoid blows.

Seventh round—McAuliffe got in several on Lees' face, but more were avoided by Lees hiding his face. Both men were badly winded.

Eighth round—McAuliffe knocked Lees down, and when he rose knocked him over the ropes, hands down. Having him at his mercy McAuliffe put the Australian to sleep with two right handers on the jaw. The fight closed with McAuliffe unmarked and Lees presenting a bloody sight.

Knocked Out in Fourteen Rounds.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Chappie Moran, of Jersey City, and Frank Donovan, of Brooklyn, 105-pound champions, fought fourteen savage rounds for $500 a side, near Tottenville, L. I., last night. The fighting was fast and furious throughout, and both men were badly punished. At the end of the fourteenth round Donovan was unable to respond to the call of time, and the fight was awarded Moran.

Indian Graduating.

CARLISLE, Pa., May 23.—The tenth anniversary and graduating exercises of the Indian industrial school took place yesterday. The morning exercises included the inspection of industries and schools, gymnasium and parade drill. The afternoon exercises consisted of reading of papers by the class and presentation of diplomas by Secretary Noble. In his address the secretary declared that the president has laid down the policy that the Indian tribes should be treated with justice. He was followed by Senator Colquitt and Governor Beaver.

Cronin's Body Found.

It Was Discovered in a Chicago Catch Basin.

EVIDENCE OF FOUL MURDER.

A Dozen or More Deep Cuts on His Head Tell the Cause of His Death—Unraveling the Trunk Mystery.

CHICAGO, May 23.—P. H. Cronin, the Irish agitator who disappeared from his home two weeks ago, was found yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in a catch basin on Evanston avenue. A towel was wrapped about his head, but the rest of the body was stark naked. The Catholic charm called the "Agnus Dei," which the doctor always wore next his skin suspended about his neck was untouched. On the head were the marks left by a dozen deep cuts, which have severed the scalp and indented the skull.

CRONIN AND PLACE WHERE THE TRUNK WAS FOUND.

It is the opinion of the police that Cronin was foully murdered, and by some man who could not bring himself to disturb a Catholic charm.

Found by Laborers.

A gang of laborers in the employ of the Lake View city government have been cleaning the ditches along Evanston avenue during the week. Yesterday Foreman Henry Roesche and two men were working north on the east side of Evanston avenue towards Fifty-ninth street. As they neared the catch basin at the crossing, they noticed a strong smell of putrifying flesh, and Roesch pried off the top of the catch basin with his spade and uncovered the body of Dr. Cronin. It had apparently been thrown into the basin, for the head was down and the feet and legs were in the sewer opening.

Where the Body Was Found.

The corner of Fifty-ninth street and Evanston avenue is about 300 yards from the Argyle park station on the Chicago and Evanston branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. It is but two or three blocks from the lake and about nine-tenths of a mile north from the corner of Sulzer street and Evanston avenue, where the empty trunk was found on the day after Cronin's disappearance. There are four catch basins at the intersections of the street, and the body was found in the one on the southeast corner. It seems altogether remarkable that it was not sooner discovered, for the Lake View police started out to search all the catch basins in the city the week after the blood-stained trunk was found.

In the Morgue.

Immediately after taking the body out of the basin Foreman Roesch notified the Lake View police station, and summoned the patrol wagon. The body was stretched out in the Lake View morgue, which occupies the front room in the basement under the station. Telephone messages were sent to the city police, and an hour after the finding of the body a dozen of Cronin's friends were at the station.

John E. Scanlan, Mortimer Scanlan and John F. Scanlan were among the first who arrived. They identified the body as that of Cronin upon first sight. Later it was more positively identified by T. T. Conklin, the saloonkeeper with whom Cronin lived, and by James Boland and Patrick McGarry.

Description of the Wounds.

In the evening Dr. J. B. Brandt, president of the Cook county hospital staff, carefully examined the body, and positively identified it as that of Cronin. He discovered upon the head the following cuts and bruises: Over the left temple, a cut four inches long, through the scalp and into the skull; over the left parietal bone, a cut one and a half inches long, which also marked the skull; also a cut one and a half inches long over the frontal bone at the junction of the left parietal; a cut three inches long through the scalp, and marking the occipital bone; a large bruise back of the forehead on the right parietal bone, and near it two cuts, each an inch long; bruises on the left leg and severe contusions, apparently made by a bludgeon, on the forehead.

Connected With the Trunk Mystery.

The doctor said that the blows must have been made by some strong instrument, perhaps an ice pick. He said if the instrument had not been sharp the skull would have been fractured, whereas, it was only indented, or marked by the blows. Dr. Brandt examined the hair found in the trunk on Evanston avenue, and stated last night that it was Dr. Cronin's hair. There are other reasons for believing that Cronin's body was carried in the trunk. There was cotton found about the feet and under the chin of the corpse of the same quality as the cotton found in the trunk, and the threads of cloth found in the cotton in the trunk corresponded in appearance with the threads of the towel wrapped about Cronin's head. When this towel was removed part of Cronin's moustache came with it, showing that decomposition was already far advanced. The body was much swollen, owing to its long continued stay under the water in the basin. However, there can be no mistake to the identification.

Searching for the Perpetrators.

"It is Cronin's body," said John F. Scanlon. "I knew it the minute I entered the room and was as certain of it then as I am now after making a most careful examination. If I had nothing else to go by I could identify it by the teeth. Cronin had two large front teeth remaining on the upper jaw and the left eye tooth gone. His lower teeth were dark in color, placed far apart and rounded in shape. I can identify the body also by the shape of the forehead, by the expression of the mouth and even by the hair which remains, and the mustache and goatee. I believe that he was the victim of the foulest of murders; I believe that the fact that the 'Agnus Dei' was untouched is most significant; I believe that the suspicion we have all along entertained as to the manner of his death were well grounded, and I expect to see the perpetrators of the deed brought to justice. Cronin's friends and fellow workers will spare no money or pains to bring about such a result, and will not stop until the instigators as well as the perpetrators of the crime are discovered."

Positively Identified.

Dr. Lewis, the dentist who worked on Cronin's teeth, reached the station late in the evening, and also positively identified the body, as did A. C. O'Keefe, who for many years was Cronin's tailor. Mr. Scanlan intended at first to send for Mrs. Conklin but later it was thought unnecessary.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

The Smaller One Sinks and Eight of the Crew Go Down With Her.

MONTREAL, May 23.—A serious collision occurred on the river yesterday morning between the Royal Mail steamer Polynesian, of the Allen line, commanded by Capt. Hugh Wylie, and the steamer Cynthia, of the Donaldson line, commanded by Capt. John Taylor, resulting in the sinking of the latter and the loss of eight of her crew.

Those on deck had barely time to rush below and warn the members of the crew who were off watch and asleep in their berths to get on deck and swim ashore to save their lives. The Cynthia carried no passengers. She was from Glasgow, with a general cargo, chiefly of pig iron.

Following is a list of the crew of the Cynthia who lost their lives:

Hugh Irving, chief cook, of Glasgow.
Alexander Nicholas, sailor, Glasgow.
Andrew Vance and Charles McCracken, trimmers.
James Low, fireman, Glasgow.
James Ferron, boatswain.
Charles Blackstock, mess room boy, and David Young, a stowaway from Glasgow.

Notwithstanding the fact that the survivors were dripping wet, no one offered them shelter or refreshments, and they had to walk all the way to the town. About ten feet of mast, one boat half full of water, and another almost totally submerged, is all that is visible of the Cynthia. The hull has totally disappeared, and is lying at the bottom, not more than twelve feet from the shore.

According to the people in the vicinity, some of whom witnessed the catastrophe, the collision took place about 4:40, and in twenty minutes more the boat had disappeared. The bow, which was struck, went down first, lifting the screw partly out of the water, and then she lopped over, throwing all but three men into the water.

The sailors of the Cynthia claim that the Polynesian steamed right ahead and that had she stopped she could have saved the men who were drowned. They also state that there were fifteen on shore, who, although there were boats near by, did not raise a finger even in an attempt to rescue the drowning sailors. The Polynesian had a big hole stove in her bow.

Celestine Brunel, the Cynthia's pilot, ascribes the collision to the fact that the Polynesian was not in her proper course, and he says that if she had not blown her whistle, and thereby caused him to change the course of his vessel, the accident might have been averted, as there was more room for the Polynesian to pass on the south side than on the north.

Terrible Disaster to Fishermen.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 23.—Advices from St. Pierre, Miq., state that two fishing vessels, the Ella and Quartre Freres, which left France some time ago for the Newfoundland fisheries, with 175 men on board, have been lost, and that all hands have doubtless been drowned.

BOSTON, May 23.—Brooks & Wells, boot and shoe manufacturers, 107 Bedford street, with a factory at Westboro, have failed. Liabilities reported about $80,000; nominal assets about $90,000. The firm has done a business of $100,000 a year on a capital of about $50,000.

AN ITALIAN MOB.

The Illinois Militia Liable to Be Called Out to Braidwood.

BRAIDWOOD, Ill., May 23. An infuriated mob of armed Italians from neighboring collieries made their appearance at the mines of the Chicago & Wilmington Coal company yesterday morning and prevented the colliers from resuming work. They threatened to kill anybody who "scabbed" and also to burn the shafts. The mob numbered about 300 and the rioters were supplied with double-barreled shotguns, repeating rifles and revolvers.

Mayor Curry, who is also superintendent of the Chicago, Wilmington and Vermillion Coal company, ordered the rioters off the premises. They refused to go, and told Curry that he would be riddled with bullets if he appeared at the shaft again. Curry then called upon the sheriff to protect him. Mr. Sweet, president of the company, and the sheriff are in communication with the state authorities. If the mob refuses to obey the sheriff's order to disperse the state militia will probably be called out. The fact that the miners have agreed to work at a reduction, while the men in the adjacent collieries are on a strike, is bound to cause trouble unless the authorities protect the men while they work.

VICKSBURG VETERANS.

Meeting of the National Association at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 23.—The National association of the survivors of the Vicksburg campaign are meeting here in their first annual convention, preliminary organization having been effected in February last. Governor Hovey is presiding, and several hundred delegates from Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Missouri and Kansas are present.

The earlier hours of the session were given up to social intercourse, and in the afternoon speeches were made by several of the delegates. Governor Hovey was continued as president, and the association adjourned to meet at Milwaukee in August.

The veterans do not think the importance of the Vicksburg campaign has been appreciated by historians or the public, and it is part of the purpose of this organization to show that the battles about that city, together with its surrender and the opening of the Mississippi to the gulf, from the turning point to the civil war.

MILWAUKEE Wis., May 23.—The Journal's Fargo, Dak., special says: The Northern Pacific Railroad company's sixty thousand bushel elevators at Davenport, Dak., burned this morning. Loss unknown.

Deeply Interesting.

The meetings of the evangelists, Upham and Hawes, at the Christian Church, are growing in interest. Music Hall was filled last Sunday night and many were the expressions of delight with the earnest effort of the speaker. Tuesday night his talk was on temperance, after which, when the invitation was given, four persons decided to come to the Lord's side. The meeting will continue every night this week. Song service at 7:30, sermon at 8 p. m. Bro. Updike was called home yesterday by a telegram. But will be with us tonight, and Bro. Hawes, who went to Youngstown to attend the Ohio State Missionary convention, is expected this evening. So come tonight and help in the work of saving many of the precious souls who are going to ruin. Come, all are welcome, seats free.

A Fly Youth.

Fond Parent (sternly)—More money! I tell you, sir, I did not dare ask my father for money when I was your age.

Fly Youth—I know the reason of that.

F. P.—You do? And what was the reason, pray?

F. Y.—Your father was not so kind and generous hearted as mine is.

F. P.—Well, I suppose I must let you have a little, Jack; but go easy, my boy, go easy.—Boston Courier.

At a Non-Kissable Age.

Her Father—Gracie, you don't kiss us all round when you bid us good night nowadays.

Gracie (sleepishly)—I'm too old for that now, papa.

* * * * * * *

Neighbor's Boy—Well, I must run home now, Gracie. Say, Gracie, mayn't I kiss you good night?

Gracie (blushingly)—Oh dear, no! I'm not old enough for that, Willie.—Chicago Tribune.

Little Charlie, whose grandfather is a Baptist minister, took dinner at the parsonage the other day. He lived at a hotel, and his first visit to his venerable grandparent began the blessing. Charlie had begun eating voraciously. "Don't mind me, grandpa," he remarked between mouthfuls, when the latter remonstrated, "go right on with your blessing."—Philadelphia Press.

PERSONAL GOSSIP

Queen Victoria has received a present of [illegible]

The Emperor of Austria has paid Count Andrassy's debts, amounting to [illegible].

Mr. Arthur L. Thomas, the new governor of Utah, is a Pennsylvanian of good old Welsh stock.

Baron Alphonse de Rothschild is said to have lost $5,000,000 by the collapse of the copper ring.

Tennyson's income from his works is taken at $100,000 a year, Browning, $10,000, and Swinburne $5,000.

Charles Dickens' youngest son, Mr Edward Bulwer Lytton Dickens, has been elected a member of the New South Wales parliament.

Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria is really quite a useful and kindly aristocrat. He practices as a physician at Munich and never receives a fee for his services.

Mr. Gladstone considers sew the most difficult tree to fell, next come beech and ash. Oak, though very hard, falls well, but the easiest of all is Spanish chestnut.

Congressman Tom Reed, of Maine, has a passion for rifle shooting, and when in Washington he frequently drops into a rifle gallery and shatters glass balls by the score.

Gen. Lew Wallace is writing a book, of which the scene is laid in Constantinople in the Fifteenth century, and the subject is the capture of that city in 1453 by Mahomet the Conqueror.

The Prince of Wales has a strong dislike to the fashion of any one wearing a black tie with evening dress. He has crossed off several persons from the visiting list of Marlborough house because they offended in this particular.

Capt. Watkins, of the ocean racer City of Paris, says that he expects to lower the record still more this summer. He lost three and one half hours by a fog during the last trip, and expects to keep to the five day record every trip in future.

The Prince of Wales, says The London Star, lives the life of a regular country gentleman at Sandringham, eating the hugh breakfasts of the Norfolk farmer, going in extensively for home comforts, looking after his farms and stock, and taking a keen interest in sport.

Baron Erlanger, the great European financier and capitalist, when registering at a hotel writes after his name, "London and Paris." Napoleon Ives, the great American financier, may soon follow suit by registering Sing Sing and New York.

The fact that Henry Irving's real name is not "Irving" proves the absurdity of the rumor that he was to be knighted by Queen Victoria. He could only be admitted into an order of chivalry by his own name and under no circumstance under an alias.

Dr. Elliott Coues, whose knowledge of birds is far reaching, is going to make a trip around the world in the interest of the Theosophical Society of America. Already his coming is heralded abroad, and preparations are being made by scientists and theosophs for his entertainment.

A Hohenzollern, for the first time in the existence of his house, is soon to marry a Bourbon. He is the eldest son of the Prince of Hohenzollern Sigmaringen, who was the prefect for the war of 1870 on [illegible] of the Portuguese infanta, who used to be often on visits at the Tuileries before that war.

Gen. Du Vordy du Vernois, the new Prussian minister of war, is, singular to state, of French origin. He was born on German soil and entered the Prussian army as a youth. It was he whom King William sent down from the heights of Frenois into Sedan to summon the garrison to surrender.

Baker Haggard, the novelist, will visit Persia and surrounding countries unattended. He is an experienced traveler and is used to the ways of the Orient. When he starts off on an expedition like the one he now contemplates he buys a small dog to accompany him. This is the only weapon he takes with him.

The late Carl Rosa was a "boy prodigy," and was lead about concerts as the "Juvenile Paganini." He married Mme. Parepa, his prima donna, during his first tour of the United States. He is said to have never taken a benefit or testimonial in any form. Music was his profession, but politics and pictures were his pet hobbies.

The Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., has been seen sometimes during the day in a dress suit. The true explanation, it is said, may be found in the fact that he is one of the most extensive workers of the age, and that when he has an evening engagement of a social nature he is prone to put on his dress coat when he gets up in the morning to save time.

The Lord of Italy intends to pay a visit to the Empress Frederick at Homburg during his stay in Germany, and as the projected marriage between the Prince of Naples and the Princess Clementine of Belgium has been abandoned, it is exceedingly probable that the young prince will be betrothed to Princess Margaret of Prussia, the youngest sister of Emperor William.

Gen. S. W. Crawford, U. S. A., who is writing a series of magazine articles on the condition of European armies, states that the pay of the Russian officer is exceptionally meager and virtually keeps the commissions in the hands of wealthy men. A full general receives $1,500 per year, a major general $950, a colonel $750, a captain of line under $750 and a lieutenant $705.

NECKLACE NOTES.

Necklaces from the reign of Charles I were made of amber set in gold.

Among the Tartars of the time of Genghis Khan the necklace was often made of human teeth.

In the reign of Henry VIII any one who had not a [illegible] per year income could not wear a necklace.

The scalps of the cross constantly wear their bead necklaces, looking upon them as genuine charms.

Once the most valuable and coveted possession of the western Indian is the necklace of grizzly bears' claws.

The Puritans abolished necklaces as they abolished everything they had their hands on which savored of ornament.

In parts of Japan children place necklaces of coral around the necks of babies with the belief that they will assist the children in teething.

When the Stuart dynasty was overthrown by the Normans, all persons below a certain rank were forbidden to wear necklaces under heavy penalties.

In Peru with America the natives wear necklaces set at regular intervals which before long [illegible] only on the mountains, rarely on the plains.

BABYHOOD'S PILLOW.

A REVERIE THAT TAKES A MAN BACK TO HIS INFANCY.

A Charming Reminiscence of Childhood's Happy Hours—Papa Gives Him Candy for Being Good—The Mother Whose Kiss Finds Her Little One in the Dark.

Eleven o'clock strikes. Immediately I make ready to set my papers in order on my desk and turn out my lamp, when all at once my bed, on which I have somehow turned a more contemplative look than usual, begins to wear a strange, mysterious air, meditative and thoughtful, with its coverlet turned down, its sheets open and its pillow ready for my head. Why do I sit down again and think an hour? and still another hour? My lamp goes out of its own accord, and the night passes without heeding me.

IN THE LITTLE WHITE CRIB.

I am 3 years old again. I sleep in a little white crib, larger than papa's leather valise, smaller than mamma's piano; a crib draped with fresh curtains which close about me every evening and are fastened with a silver pin "to make me a little room." When I raise my head I see above me an ivory cross swinging at the end of a blue ribbon that hangs from the cornice; on each side of me is a long white silk net, so that I shall not fall out. But I am always kicking off the covers and slipping through it and they continually find me with an arm or a leg caught and hanging in the meshes.

My crib, which I warm with my little childish body, where I am given my warm milk in the early morning, which is so comfortable when the doctor says I am sick, stands at the foot of papa's and mamma's big bed, so that it gives me great confidence to be so near them—they who are afraid of nothing! I do not know how it is, but I must be always asleep when they come in to go to bed—I never see them. Their bedtime is later than mine, much later—perhaps even an hour. As soon as Pia, my nurse, a big girl, brusque and good hearted, who teaches me how to say my prayers to the Bon Dieu in German—as soon as she has given me my dinner, quick! I am popped into a little bed whose end my feet never see. When shall I be as big as my night gown? In spite of all my efforts I can never catch up to them.

Then as soon as I am stretched out on the mattress, and Pia has vigorously tucked me in, I cry out with all my might, lamentably, like a little dog that is being whipped: "Mamma! Mamma!"

Some one comes. There is a noise of footsteps in the corridor. It is papa and mamma. Papa says: "Will you stop making such a noise, you little rascal? We can hear you all over the house!" He turns to the nurse and frowns:

"Pia," he says, "tell me the truth. Has this child been naughty?"

"Nein, he has been very good," says the excellent Pia.

"Then he shall have a piece of candy," says papa, satisfied at once.

"Mint, papa, mint!" I cry out.

"Yes, mint!" and papa himself drops into my little moist, open mouth the big, white crumbling penny which I love so, and which I begin to tame as soon as its penetrating odor reaches my nose. Under my little tooth the mint drop disappears like magic. Mamma whispers: "Eat it up, then, little goose!" or, "He will break his teeth to pieces."

MAMMA DOESN'T SAY A WORD.

Then she bends over me, and then I whip out my two arms from the coverlet to clasp her around the neck. I know very well that it must tire her to be weighted down so, but still I like to do it. And then I love her so! She kisses me twice, three times—then with her pretty fingers she hurriedly traces the sign of the cross on my forehead (before I came there were two little brothers who both went away to heaven) and she tenderly closes the curtains without ceasing to look lovingly in at me through the opening which grows smaller—smaller.

At last the curtains are tight shut and I can see nothing more. But I can hear. Papa has already gone away to his study, where I somehow know that he is going to smoke a cigar. Mamma, ah, but mamma is still there. She is talking to Pia in a low voice—she is talking of all kinds of things and they are all about me. Then the lamp goes on its nightly journey. It travels about, it changes its place; finally it is put on a certain corner of the mantelpiece, always the same corner, where its dim light cannot reach me. Then I hear the noise of the feuder—a chair put in its place—a carriage in the street—then——

All at once I am at last a man, and am wearing trousers like my Uncle Edward.

But often I awake with a start and then a great fear of the night and the darkness seizes me; I stretch out my arms and knock—toc, toc!—on the big bed. The big bed will protect me. Toc, toc! Toc, toc! The knocking itself frightens me in the silence.

The big bed creaks confusedly. I hear papa, half awake, telling me in a queer, droll tone to be quiet. "Ssh! We are all asleep," he says; "everybody is asleep." Mamma does not say a word. She rises—she rises—and ah! even after forty years my heart recollects the light fall of her dear soft feet on the carpet and the sound of her low voice, invisible like herself, murmuring close to my cheek, "What is it, darling?" while without hesitation her kiss comes straight to me in the night and unerringly finds me.—Translated from the French for The Philadelphia Times.

He Got Square.

A young lady broke off her engagement with a suitor when a wealthier lover appeared upon the scene. She wrote to her old lover requesting him to return her photograph. Here was a chance for revenge, which he took by sending her the following note: "I would gladly comply with your request, but if I do it will spoil my euchre deck. I have a collection of photographs which I use for playing cards, and I do not want to break it by giving away the queen of diamonds."—Waverley Magazine.

HE KICKED THRICE.

And a Drummer Was Done Up for the Cigars.

"Yes, we meet with all sorts of people here," answered the railroad conductor, as he sat down in the smoker after making his rounds. "It is a great place in which to study human nature."

"Aren't there a good many kickers among travelers?"

"Plenty of them. I could have a fight every hour in the day if I wanted to talk back. There is one in the third seat ahead now. He lives at R——, and he never comes or goes without trying to kick up a row."

"He seems quiet enough."

"But he only seems. I'm expecting every minute to hear his war whoop. It is just an hour's run to R——, and I'll bet he makes three kicks in that time."

"I'll go you for a box of cigars."

"Done, old fellow!"

They were shaking hands on it when the man rose up and went to the water cooler. He took two or three sips of water and then walked back to the conductor and said:

"When you get ready to clean the drugs and chemicals out of that cooler please let me know. Perhaps I can buy half a ton of coperas at wholesale figures."

"That's one," said the conductor, as the kicker took his seat.

The train stopped and another round was made, and the official had scarcely taken his seat when the kicker came over and said:

"If there is a window in this coach which can be raised I wish you would label it for me!"

"That's two," whispered the conductor, "and we've got sixteen miles to go yet."

The kicker sat down to his newspaper, and he was so quiet for a time that the drummer began to have hopes. Eight—ten—twelve miles rolled behind the train, and he seemed deeply interested in an article, when he suddenly bobbed up and came over to the conductor.

"I'll bet fifty to one there are flees in this coach! I've just been bitten by something mighty like one, and I'm going to send in a complaint to headquarters."

"Are you satisfied?" asked the conductor, after the kicker had taken his seat.

"I've got to be. And that's his usual practice, is it?"

"Oh, he's let me off light today."

"Well, it's worth a box of cigars to see into human nature in this way," mused the drummer as the train drew up at R——.

The kicker and the conductor got off together, and the former softly queried:

"Was it three kicks, Tom?"

"Yes."

"And the bet?"

"A box of cigars."

"All right. Bring my half down to-night. I'll be going up again to-morrow, and you see if you can't make it six kicks and two boxes!"—New York Sun.

Trieing tew satisfy our desires with wealth iz like trieing tew stop up a rat hole with sand; the rats will soon dig out sum where else.

A piece ov satire, tew be beneficial, should be so rendered that every man who reads or hears it shall say to himself: "That iz just, bekauze it hits every boddy but me."

Really wize men pay but little attenshun to mistery; but one good mistery will furnish a dozen pheols with vittles and drink for a year and fat the whole ov them besides.

Wanted—A Royal Road.

Little Mabel, 3 years old, showed a strong desire to know her alphabet, and her big sister kindly began to teach her. After a few moments of instruction Mabel flew into a dreadful passion of displeasure.

"Ah," said the big sister, "so you don't want to learn your letters after all?"

"No," said Mabel, very positively, "me don't want to learn 'em—me want to know 'em!"—Youth's Companion.

AFTER A MOB.

Bloodshed Liable to Be Reported From Forest City, Arkansas.

FOREST CITY, Ark., May 23.—It was reported yesterday that last night an attack would be made on the jail for the purpose of liberating the Neelys, and every preparation was made to meet it. Business was abandoned and a small army was organized. Messages were sent into the country, and fully 150 well-armed men came in and nearly every man in town armed himself. A strong guard was posted about the jail and pickets thrown out along each road to the place, while a large reserve force was held at the sheriff's office to be available at any desired quarter.

Everything was quiet until about 9:30 o'clock, when shots were heard at the north end of town, and the reserve was at once ordered to "fall in." A volley followed and a scattering fire was then heard, when one of the pickets ran in and reported that a mob of seventy-five or one hundred men attacked them. The reserve force at once went to their assistance, but the mob had withdrawn after an exchange of shots. A number of horsemen, led by Russ Prevett, then started in pursuit of the mob, and it is quite probable a battle will be fought when overtaken.

At 10:30 nothing had been heard from the party, and there was no more shooting. No one was wounded in the skirmish. Sheriff Isaid has wired the governor for troops. The fact that the negroes in St. Francis county outnumber the whites by about 300, and they have a number of white allies, occasions no little alarm, and the town has the appearance of being in a state of siege.

John Keely's Power.

Mme. Blavatsky makes a startling statement in the second volume of her theosophical book, the "Secret Doctrine," upon which she is now working. John Keely, she says, is in possession of the wonderful occult force which the adepts have, and his motor is that and nothing more. The force is in Keely and inseparable from him. It will die with him. If Keely was allowed to use this awful power, as the adepts use it, he could blow Philadelphia to pieces by lifting his hand; but the guardians of the force watch him closely and see that he does not use it for harm. Wayne MacVeagh, who is Keely's counsel in his suits with the motor stockholders, was sent advance sheets of this part of Mme. Blavatsky's book by a St. Louis theosophist. In concluding his letter of thanks, he said: "You and I, my dear sir, both know that Hamlet was right, and that there are stranger things in this world today than you or I will ever know."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health – not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often baffled in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is summed down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names, grades, etc., that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as harmless as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who love it once love it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

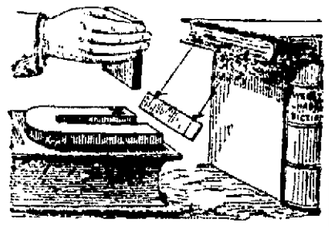
SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

SUBJECTS OF INTEREST TO WIDE AWAKE MEN AND WOMEN.

An Illustrated Experiment That Shows How Motion May Be Produced by the Force of a Permanent Magnet—An Interesting Scientific Experiment.

The lodestone is a familiar example of one of the permanent magnets which Nature furnishes "ready made." Artificial magnets are produced by the contact of hardened steel with magnets or by means of the voltaic current, according to Scientific American, which pronounces the latter the more effective method, provided a strong current and a suitable helix or electro-magnet is available.



MOTION CAUSED BY PERMANENT MAGNET.

Seekers after perpetual motion have endeavored to make use of magnetism. The authority already quoted tells that vain efforts have been made to discover a substance which could be interposed between the magnet and its armature and removed without the expenditure of power, and which would intercept the lines of force, so as to allow the armature to be alternately drawn forward and released, but no such substance has ever been discovered. The lines of force may be intercepted by a plate of soft iron placed between the magnet and its armature, but it requires more power to introduce the plate into the magnetic field, and withdraw it therefrom, than can be recovered from the armature.

The accompanying cut illustrates an experiment showing how motion may be produced by the force of a permanent magnet. An armature is suspended by threads in the field of a permanent magnet. The magnet attracts the armature, slightly deflecting its suspension from a true vertical line. The introduction of a soft iron plate between the magnet and its armature intercepts the lines of force, thus releasing the armature, when it swings back under the influence of gravitation. If at this instant the iron plate is withdrawn, the magnet again acts upon the armature, drawing it forward. Another introduction of the iron plate into the field again releases the armature, when it swings back, this time a little farther than before. By moving the iron plate in this manner synchronously with the oscillations of the armature, the armature may be made to swing through a large arc.

Two Old Trees.

The following items appeared recently in Popular Science News:

The old oak tree at Waltham, which so excellent an authority as Professor Alexander Agassiz said was 700 years of age, has been cut down. It has been dead for some time, and stood in the path of modern improvement. Part of the venerable tree will be preserved in the library.

The great oak tree at Woodbridge, which was cut down a few weeks ago after an existence reckoned at from 1,500 to 2,000 years, is to be made into chairs for the members of the Quinnipiac club, of New Haven. This tree was doubtless the oldest along the Atlantic coast, although the authorities differ as to its age, and the largest oak in the world. Oliver Wendell Holmes said the tree was at least 1,800 years old, and Professor Abbott, of New York, who made a careful examination of the monster eighteen years ago, said it could not be less than 2,000 years old, while Professor Eaton stands with these authorities by stating the age of the tree as ranging from 1,500 to 2,000 years.

The Electric Age.

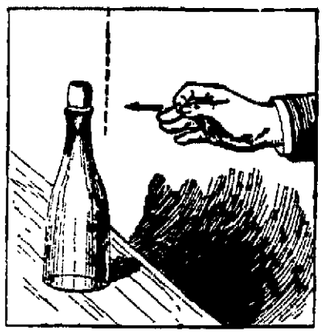
Professor Elisha Gray remarks that electrical science has made a greater advance in the last twenty years than in all the 6,000 historic years preceding. More is discovered in one day now than in a thousand years of the middle ages. We find all sorts of work for electricity to do. We make it carry our messages, drive our engine, ring our door bell and scare the burglar; we take it as a medicine, light our gas with it, see by it, hear from it, talk with it, and now we are beginning to teach it to write.

Making Bricks by Machinery.

Some may smile at the idea of making bricks by machinery, but it is believed that brick making by hand will soon become a thing of the past. The stiff clay, machine made brick will be used for paving purposes, bridges, docks, tunnels and all works that require great strength; while dry pressed brick will become the building brick of the future.

A Simple Scientific Experiment.

Take a bottle and place a cork over the mouth. The cork must be sufficiently large to rest lightly upon it, without falling into the neck. Snap the neck of the bottle sharply with the thumb and finger, and the cork will fall from the bottle towards the hand giving the blow, and not away from it as might be expected. This effect is due to the principle of inertia, the quick blow forcing, as it were, the bottle away from the cork before the motion can be transmitted to the cork itself.



SNAP THE NECK OF THE BOTTLE.

Few persons will be able to perform this experiment satisfactorily the first time, as the instinctive fear of breaking the bottle or injuring the fingers prevents one from giving a sufficiently powerful blow, in spite of all efforts to the contrary.

The Australian Rabbit Pest.

It is stated that M. Pasteur's plan of exterminating the rabbits by inoculation with transmittable virus has proved to be a failure in Australia. The reward of $100,000 offered by the New South Wales government for an effective mode of destroying the rodents is as yet unclaimed.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

Fancy Nail Decoration on Wood—An Old Style of Handiwork Revived.

New and striking in decorative work is surface ornamentation of wood in geometrical patterns formed with fancy nails. This is a revival of an old art of which specimens are on antique chests and boxes of English workmanship. It is now applied to various fancy articles, such as jewel boxes, book covers, music portfolios, photograph, mirror and picture frames, book racks, reading desks, screens, etc.

The work is very easy to carry out, and if carefully done has a good effect. The only tools required are a hammer and a pricker. Soft wood like pine, alder or lime, about half an inch thick, ought to be chosen, and the surface can either be stained, enameled, or covered with plush, velvet, cloth, felt or leather. The design is first marked on tissue, tracing, or thin note paper, and fixed to the surface of the wood with drawing pins.

Each point, where a nail head is to appear, has to be pricked in the wood, more or less deep according to the size of the nail. The nail is then inserted in the prick hole with the fingers, but not finally fixed with the hammer until all the nails have been placed and the paper beneath removed. To prevent the nail spikes from bending, and the nail heads from being injured, a flat piece of wood ought to be interposed between the nail heads and the hammer. The nails are the same as those which upholsterers use, and of many shapes, in yellow or white metal, silvered or gilt, in bronze or oxidized blue color and in black. The color of the nails depends on the color of the material which is to be decorated. Much work is done with simply the ordinary brass headed furniture nail, which is always easily obtainable, and it furnishes very effective ornamentation with small outlay of trouble and expense.

Doing Up Curtains.

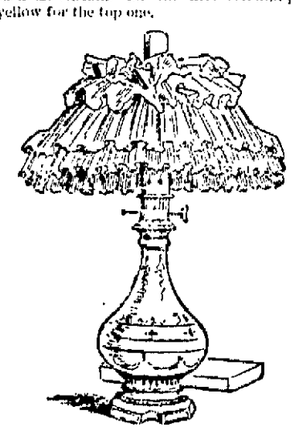
A more economical method of doing up curtains than to send them to a laundry is described by a good housekeeper as follows: Dust them thoroughly, and if there are any breaks or tears in them, mend them before washing. Do not wring them, but pass through a clothes wringer, keeping them straight; boil a few minutes, then rinse in clear water. Blue the starch a trifle, but do not make them too stiff; then lay sheets on the floor and spread the curtains on them, taking care to stretch the work straight and true. Pin the edges on the sheet and let them lie till perfectly dry, and you will be convinced that home laundrying of nice curtains is far preferable to hiring them done up, as they will last longer and look nicer than when pressed by hot irons.

Sardine Sandwiches.

Drain off the oil from a box of sardines, and lay them on soft paper to absorb all the oil possible. Pick over with a silver fork, removing the bones, etc., and mince fine with a silver knife. Mix carefully with the juice of a small lemon, a teaspoonful of melted butter, and a very little cayenne pepper and salt. Cut off the crust from some good raised bread, and butter the loaf evenly and thinly before cutting the slice. (Leave the crust on if you choose, or you may cut them in fancy shapes before spreading on the paste.)

The Parasol Lamp Shade.

The lamp shade illustrated in the cut is made in crimped tissue paper in two colors, such as carmine for the first veil and pale yellow for the top one.



TISSUE PAPER LAMP SHADE.

Each veil is attached to the frame and kept in place by a piece of elastic; double paper frilling round the top. Ten sheets of paper are required for the inside veil and twelve for the outside.

Ebony Finish for Wood.

A fine and durable ebonized finish for hard or soft wood may be made with fine coach black ground in oil, thinned, with a little linseed oil, Japan dryer and turpentine. Give the work several coats, rubbing down with fine sand paper and finish with the oil and pumice. The only drawback is that it will require a long time to dry so hard that it can be rubbed.

Preventing Rust on Fire Irons.

Something should be done to prevent rust on fire irons that are put away for the summer, as it will be found very difficult to remove. Its presence is said to be prevented on copper as well as iron and brilliancy retained by sponging with fat oil varnish mixed with four-fifths of rectified spirits of turpentine.

French Onion Soup.

Cut a large onion into slices, put into a saucepan with a piece of butter and simmer over the fire till the onion is a delicate brown. Mix a dessertspoonful of flour smoothly with a pint of water, stir this into the saucepan and simmer half an hour. Add pepper and salt.

Orange Meringue.

Slice six peeled oranges in a dish and pour over one pint of milk boiled with one-half of a cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of smooth corn starch, allowed to cool. Make meringue of the whites of three eggs beaten stiff for top and brown.

Spinach.

Boil spinach for a full hour in boiling hot water; drain and put into a frying pan, with a little ground cloves, allspice and cinnamon, a lump of butter and a few drops of olive oil; stew for fifteen minutes and serve with vinegar.

Buttercup Blanc Mange.

Soak one-half box of gelatine over night; add three pints of warm milk, yolks of three eggs and one-half cupful of powdered sugar. Stir till dissolved and then strain in a mold.

Experiment in Congelation.

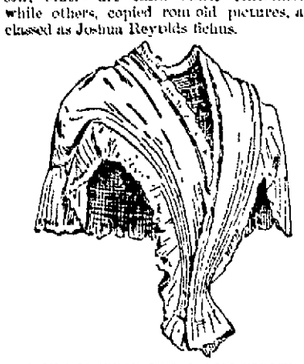
Mix some pounded ice and salt together, fill a large bowl with the mixture and bury in it a small bottle of water. The mixture of salt and snow will absorb so much heat from the water that in a short time (about an hour) it will be frozen solid. As water expands in the act of freezing, it is very likely that the bottle will be cracked or broken.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

NEW YORK AND PARIS FASHIONS THAT HAVE FOUND FAVOR.

New Fichus Which Have Been Copied from Old Pictures and Christened After Martha Washington Dolly Madison and Other Historical Women.

Many of the new fichus are christened with old names, some being patriotically called after Martha Washington and Dolly Madison; others are called Marie Antoinette, while others, copied from old pictures, are classed as Joshua Reynolds fichus.



FICHU TO WEAR WITH A LOW BODICE.

In the cut is represented a convenient and at the same time tasteful fichu, designed to wear over a decolletetress. This simple accessory gives to the wearer a high or low bodice as occasion requires. These simple capes are becoming to most figures, and furnish an attractive drapery for bodices that are not otherwise trimmed. A dressy fichu is shown in the second cut. It is known as the Marguerite and is gauged on the shoulder. It is of soft silk to match the full front, and may be black or white, as best suits the dress over which it is to be worn. The flowers and coquille are of lace; the high collar is made of bright colored ottoman ribbon, as are the butterfly bows at the back and the front.

THE MARGUERITE FICHU.

Some of the new fichus are doubled squares of tulle, net, or mousseline de soie, with the corners of the back rounded, the bias middle edge folded slightly and the fronts pointed. The entire edge is then trimmed with a frill of lace.

Evening Toilets.

Many evening gowns now consist only of a front breadth of considerable width, stretching far back under the arm, and of a train. These wide front breadths are generally made either of contrasting material—satin with brocade, or brocade with velvet, or of a fine piece of embroidery. Some in fine lisse, the ground either cream or light tender green, pink or maize, are worked in soft silk either with palms or interlacing designs, which are closer and heavier at the foot, and more scattered towards the waist. They are sold in lengths of four and a eighth yards, which can be, and frequently are, divided, the half being enough. A beautiful design is composed mainly of empire wreaths, graduating upwards, the edge at the foot cut out in scallops and buttonholed.

Crepe de Chine is a favorite material for similar treatment, save that the patterns are all different, elaborate, and well covering. A striped lisse, sold by the yard, and useful for the same purpose, has a brocaded floral design between the stripes; and lisse is combined in weaving with fancy grenadine, and has horizontal lines.

Fashions in Sashes.

The new black moire sashes have insertions of brilliant jet let in near the ends, some being horizontal, and others tapering perpendicularly. Two rows are placed horizontally, with the loaf of each ribbon between, and sometimes a delicate fringe at the edge. There are charming washing sashes for children's frocks to be had now, striped, in several colors, deeply fringed, and measuring about two and one-half yards long.

Flannel Petticoats.

One of the newest forms of trimming is to embroider the petticoat in silk, with open designs, to the depth of a quarter of a yard. Others again have wide frills of lace at the hem, with thick satin stitch embroidery in silk above. Another style is to let in lace insertion, in triple rows, above a frill of lace, with strips of the flannel showing between.

Frontlets for Directoire Coats.

Collars and shirt fronts, in striped linen, for wearing with the jacket bodices and waistcoats, are much affected by some women. Other frontlets are of pale colored silk, plaited finely, with a frill edging one side. These are for wearing with the directoire coats, and so are the pleated cravats or ties, in delicate colored silk.

Fashion Notes.

Bonnets for summer wear are many of them crownless, and some of the new hats are transparent, an arrangement which is suggestive of both coolness and lightness.

French women are dressing the hair low at the back, with the catogan, and for this style high bonnets would be quite inadmissible.

The galons for dress trimmings are made of braid on edge, which when used look as if they had been braided on the stuff and take the form of gimps.

Boas of tulle will be worn the coming summer with evening toilets.

When green is chosen for entire gowns the grayish shades, such as russia or vert de gris, are favored, but for accessories the yellowish greens, especially tilleul, Chartreuse or Metternich greens predominate.

The buttons intended to be worn on directoire bodices and coats are large, the centers painted on ivory, and bordered with pearl and paste rims. They are copied from old models, but cannot equal them, for the paste of those days was crystal.

A Good Country for Girls?

There is no country like this for the proper development of girls. Tradition has no fears for them, and unlike English, German, French, or any other foreign girls, they are not met at every step by the assertion that a girl cannot do this or that, simply because she is a girl. This foolish reasoning has been brushed aside by good American common sense, and in consequence our girls can go anywhere and do anything that boys can do, provided it is right and proper. Given this privilege, it is not surprising that American girls distance the world in precocity, energy and courage.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

Some Curious Facts About Hay Fever and Suggestions for Its Treatment.

In a monograph upon hay fever and its treatment, Dr. Morell Mackenzie says that among races, the English and American; among classes, the upper and cultivated, and of the sexes, the males, are especially susceptible to hay fever. In the north of Europe it is almost unknown. It is rare in France, Germany, Italy and Spain; whereas in England it is frequent and in America prevalent. Again, 90 per cent. of its martyrs are of the upper class, while agricultural laborers, who are most exposed to the cause of the complaint, are less subject to its attacks. Lastly, the male sex is more liable to it than the female, in the proportion of three to one. He gives its cause—"the entrance into the eyes and air channels of those predisposed to the ailment, of minute particles of vegetable matter from grasses and plants in flower"—and its cure, chiefly cocaine in one form or another, or residence in certain mountain or seashore localities which are free from the disease.

Sir Andrew Clark is also quoted as suggesting the use of cocaine for the relief of victims of hay fever. He prefers a 10 per cent. solution, applied to the nostrils with a camel's hair brush. A powder of cocaine with sugar of milk applied to the nasal cavities with an "insufflator," is recommended by another physician.

In support of the theory that this disease is caused by minute particles of vegetable matter, a well known authority claims that at certain mountain resorts visitors thus afflicted find in the pollen of the common plants known as golden rod and rag weed a great source of aggravation to their sufferings.

A correspondent of a medical journal confirms the above view by the case of a patient of his, a lady whose inveterate attacks of severe hay fever every spring were found by him to be connected with the pollen of a plentiful species of alder peculiar to that part of the country; the pollen being first found in the nasal discharges of the patient, by the microscope, and afterwards identified in this alder alone. Whenever the lady left the neighborhood of her home, she would recover like magic. The alders having been exterminated by her order, the attacks of hay fever were greatly mitigated, though not entirely prevented; probably because of the alders remaining on neighboring estates.

Typhoid Fever from Impure Water.

M. Dujardin Beaumetz recently described, as an example of the danger of contracting typhoid fever from the use of impure water, the case of a family who took a house for a season at a fashionable resort. They were warned not to drink the well water, as it was supposed to be impure. They drank mineral water until the last day, when in the hurry of packing they neglected to send for mineral water and concluded to try the well water. Ten drank of it and six died; four who had previously had typhoid fever were made sick but recovered. A microscopic examination of the well water revealed the presence of the bacillus supposed to be the cause of typhoid fever.

Massage as a Tonic.

"The muscles," says a physician, "are the great furnaces of the body; in them oxygenation largely takes places and the effete materials are burned off. If the muscles are run down and there is no spare nerve energy to make them work, then you must supply the place of the nerve current by massage and electricity. Massage is a most powerful agent for effecting nutritional changes, and with the increased combustion and greater supply of food, not merely the muscles but also the heart and every organ of the body are nourished, and nerve energy is stored up for future use."

Odors Sweet and Salutary.

It has lately been claimed that flowers and the perfumes distilled from them have a salutary influence on the constitution. A foreign scientist says that residence in a perfumed atmosphere forms a protection from pulmonary affections and arrests the development of phthisis. He adds that in the town of La Grasse, where the making of perfumes is largely carried on, consumption is very rare, thanks to the odorous atmosphere produced by the distilleries.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

How to Be a Model Visitor—A Ready Adaptability the Important Requisite.

"It is not an easy task to live in other people's houses, to alter your own breakfast hour, to sleep in an unaccustomed bed, to eat at unusual periods, to await the hostess' pleasure about the carriage, to talk to the stupid son or daughter, or to endure the brilliancy of the petted one. It is a servile condition to be a visitor, even under the most complimentary circumstances." Thus Harper's Bazar sums up disadvantages which many a guest to country houses will realize in the coming season, and adds the following hints to whoever may tempt the mingled pleasure and pain of prolonged visiting:

The model visitor, let us suppose, is gifted with a ready adaptability; she has just enough anecdote and not too much, the exact amount of good looks and an absence of disagreeable encumbrances. If need be, she may join the guild of the guests for life. To those childless homes where visitors are desired for company, how often is she asked and how amiably does she comport herself!

In these households, more numerous than the uninitiated dream, she is, if she conform to certain common sense regulations, received with open arms, as a beneficent angel. To this end she must first of all come when she is asked, remain her stipulated time, and cheerfully say good-by at its end. Punctuality is the first article in the code. Never should a visitor presume on her popularity to keep people waiting. Every family is entitled to its idiosyncrasy.

One host is afraid of his coachman, and he cannot bear to have the carriage wait; another is tied to the breakfast bell; another expends his extraneous activity in getting people to the dinner table. A model visitor acknowledges these peculiarities and bends to them. Is she sure to never abuse the weather? Certain hosts feel that they own the weather; they are responsible for it. A visitor should have a resource for a rainy day. Model hosts are mortified if it rains, or if it is too hot to show off their views, or their greenhouses too dusty to look at their improvements, or too damp for a drive. Never, therefore, when in a country house, abuse the weather, for your host owns it. Find something pleasant to say of even a prolonged drizzle.

The sensible visitor never notices the family jars. If there is an antagonism over a dog or a cat, do not take sides. Avoid partisanship about the tree which madame wishes cut down, and which monsieur swears shall not be. Even very loving husbands and wives may have their occasional little frictions, which it is the part of the common friend to quietly ignore. Above all else, let a guest beware of taking sides in the passing tiff, which will subside of itself if unnoticed. We can all abuse those we love, in a temporary fit of irritability, but we do not like others to do so. Nor must we see any defects in the servants of our friends. Our self love is so sensitive, it sends out so many tentacles, that one cannot be too careful on these points. In short, if a visitor is not disposed to be sympathetic, amiable, agreeable, self contained, self possessed, unselfish, she would better stay at home.

A Duty to Yourself.

It is surprising that people will use a common ordinary pill when they can secure a valuable English one for the same money. Dr. Acker's English pills are a positive cure for sick-headache and all liver troubles. They are small, sweet, easily taken and do not gripe. Sold by H. C. Huberman & Co.

What She Didn't Know.

The darling girl knew everything,
Knew Hebrew, Latin, Greek—
Yes, several other languages
With fluency could speak.

Of music, art, embroidery,
She had a thorough knowledge,
And many other things besides
That girls are taught at college.

The only thing she didn't know
(Nor could the maid conceal
Her ignorance of that) was how
To cook a decent meal.

But did that make the maiden less
Desirable to me?
No, she was rich and could afford
To hire a cook, you see.

Caution to Mothers.

Every mother is cautioned against giving her child laudanum or paregoric; it creates an unnatural craving for stimulants which kills the mind or the child. Acker's Baby Soother is specially prepared to benefit children and cure their pains. It is harmless and contains no Opium or Morphine. Sold by H. C. Huberman & Co.

—The betting practice has become so general among the boys that a young Main street salesman, when a customer questioned a price today, answered him, "I bet you two to one that you can't buy it cheaper." A ball team later the clerk was betting Philadelphia would beat Cleveland today.

An Upper Sandusky dispatch to the Enquirer says: Warren Rubins, a young man of wealthy parentage, residing in the southern part of this county, committed suicide last night with strychnine. He was 20 years of age and quite popular. Disappointment in a love affair is said to have prompted him in committing the rash act.

A fourteen year old son of William Pfeifer, residing in the eastern part of the county, met with an accident Tuesday which cost him his life. While working about the stable at his home he was kicked by a horse in the stomach, and injured in a horrible manner. The accident happened about noon, an ambulance was immediately summoned, but medical aid could not save him, and he died at 5 o'clock in the evening.

Two of our oldest and most respected citizens while traveling throughout the west recently, stopped off at a little mining village for some cause, where they lingered a few days. Immediately after their arrival there was considerable thieving about the town and as a consequence the strangers were suspected as the crooked parties. They were accordingly watched by the officers, and then every move reported to the Mayor of the village. After a few days in charge of the constabel, judging by their movements, they must be parties of a great deal more crimes than the small petty one which had been committed, and, seeing they had to get out as being from Marion, O., the Mayor accordingly dispatched a letter to the "Chief of police at Marion," which in due time was received by Mayor Bentley. After considerable sport he informed them that their suspicions were unfounded.

REV. G. J. SCHWEINFURTH

His Early Life in Detail, from a Private Letter by Him to George Schweinfurth, of this City.

George Schweinfurth, of this city, is in receipt of a personal letter from his cousin, Rev. G. J. Schweinfurth, of Rockford, Ill., who has created such a sensation throughout the country by the startling announcement that he is Christ, again upon earth. From the letter and by other means, we have secured considerable of his personal history, which may prove interesting to the many readers of the STAR.

Rev. George J. Schweinfurth was born in this city in 1853, where he lived with his parents until 6 years of age, when he moved with them to Allen county, O., near Spencerville. There he resided until 13 years of age when his mother, to whom he was greatly attached, died. After her death the family moved to Francisco, Jackson county, Mich., where he lived until 1871. The years in the meantime were spent in attending the village schools, working as a farm laborer, a book agent and clerking in a grocery store. His leisure hours were always spent in quiet and seclusion, and he always exhibited sterling qualities of divine character.

In the spring of 1872, he attended the Grass Lake Union schools and obtained limited assistance from his father, who was quite poor; he was also aided by his brother Philip and sister Libbie. This money he paid back in after years. He continued to attend this school during 1872 and a part of 1873.

He here met Rev. R. S. Partington and wife, then the incumbents of the Grass Lake Methodist Episcopal church. They took a great interest in the young man struggling to gain an education, and assisted him through his last year at this place. Had it not been for their kindness, he would have been unable to complete his course.

In the latter part of 1873 he was employed as sexton of the Methodist church at Jackson, Mich. For those services he never received his pay. It was here he ceased to believe the church and God are linked together, and made the assertion that he had acquired a better opinion of God than to believe that he would uphold such institutions as the churches which now exist. During 1874 he taught school and in 1875 attended Albion college. The professors at this place were inclined to consider G. J. Schweinfurth a model young man. He ended his school days at Evanston, in the latter part of 1875. In the spring of 1876 he returned to Francisco and made a tour of the lakes from Chicago to Detroit. This trip proved beneficial to the frail young man. Upon his return he planned a trip into the State of Ohio, and in July he went to Detroit and boarded a boat destined for Sandusky City. He visited relatives named Steinmaker, at that place a short time, and while there attended a camp meeting at Lakeside; but his soul was strangely discontended with the sights seen here. One morning he left Sandusky and arrived in Marion in the evening, again in the city where he had first opened his eyes upon the world. The day after his arrival here he visited the vacant school house, where he was taught to drink from the first fountain of information. While in the building he wrote on the blackboard, "When we return after long absence to our birthplace, the soul floats unconsciously on a sea of memories, and the dancing waves dreamily toss themselves upon the shores of times long passed." This object in visiting his birthplace was to consult his uncles concerning his future course. He returned from this place to Detroit and entered the Methodist ministry. He met Dorinda Helen Fletcher Eastman, in 1877 and became one of her followers. His history from that time to the present is well known. It is said Schweinfurth has amassed a fortune of a half million dollars in the last few years.

In person he very remarkably resembles the popular likeness of Christ, whom he claims to be.

CALEDONIA'S PETITION

The Prayer of Citizen to the Board of Education to Retain Superintendent Ranck.

The feelings of Caledonians are considerably stirred up over the action of the Board of Education, giving Superintendent Ranck notice that his services were not longer needed, at the close of last term. The dismissal was so un-looked-for and so seemingly without reason that immediately public sentiment manifested a determination to secure a reconsideration of the board's action. A petion was at once circulated and signed by every large majority of citizens, regardless of politics, and the board is confronted with a popular appeal that cannot be disregarded.

We are not conversant with the motives and prejudices which led to the board's action, but know the schools have prospered and secured high repute under Mr. Ranck's management, and the action of the board is difficult to understand. As an evidence of public feeling we give the petition and names of its 122 signers below:

PETITION.

WHEREAS, our honorable School Board has notified Prof. Lewis Bang that they do not intend to retain him as Superintendent of our public schools, and

WHEREAS we think they are made a very great mistake, therefore we, the undersigned, citizens of Caledonia, respectfully request said board to reconsider their action an reselect him for the ensuing year:
